

Remote Education Statement

Published January 2021

College provision is offered in line with the latest guidance from Government. During any period of remote study, the practices for students and staff will remain consistent across all provision types.

Remote delivery will be through our online platforms and VLE, Canvas and Microsoft Teams. Specific cohorts will continue to have access to other online systems as required. The full range of student support services will remain available to all students studying remotely.

When remote delivery is required, it will – as far as is practicably possible – continue in line with existing timetables. Professional expectations of students will remain in line with College policies. Where existing timetable delivery is not possible, or students are unable to access a given session remotely, allowances will be made to ensure no student is disadvantaged.

The College will continue to take the appropriate steps to ensure students can access remote learning. Students who are unable to access remote delivery due to the lack of a device, connectivity or suitable learning environment will be supported to do so through a variety of measures, i.e., loaning of devices.

Following extended periods of remote learning the College will prioritise specific groups when returning to campus. This will include provision for vulnerable groups, students with SEND, students with an EHCP and students who require specialist practical facilities to complete their qualification.

Where applicable, the College may modify assessment arrangements in line with the latest guidance from Government and awarding bodies.
